The objective of the LIME project is to promote the rapid inclusion in the labour market of third-country nationals aged between 18 and 29, with particular attention to women.

The core of the project are two pilot actions in Italy and Spain to facilitate the economic and social inclusion of 100 young migrants.

Through the implementation of the "Migrants Economic Integration Cluster - MEIC" methodology, the LIME project aims to create a network of socio-economic stakeholders to facilitate the integration of migrant people into the labour market.

The LIME project pays particular attention to the removal of obstacles, including the language barrier, that young people from third countries encounter in accessing the labour market through:

- The creation of a Territorial Cluster Working Group to implement the MEIC methodology in Italy and Spain;
- Analysis of labour market needs involving key stakeholders and inviting them to participate in the European initiative "Employers together for integration";
- The selection of 100 young people from third countries in Italy and Spain who will participate in training courses and workshops on self-employment aimed at social and labour inclusion;
- Tailor-made professional paths that meet the needs of selected young people
- The development of professionalizing L2 language courses designed according to the profiles of the beneficiaries.
